Let's Start!

Let's take a day trip to the countryside!

Learning Outcome

Accurately use information about travel and vacations in social situations.

Ask your partner:

- How often do you spend time at outdoor markets?
- Do you know of a historical figure from your country? Who is this person? What did this person do?

Can Do Statements

- I can talk about important historical figures.
- I can talk about what people do.
- I can talk about what people did or were.

Let's Explore!

John takes a tourist group to a historical market in Guatemala. Let's find out about K'iche' culture.

* The "K'iche'" were the indigenous people who lived in Guatemala.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

Today we take a shuttle bus from Guatemala City to Chichicastenango. If you don't mind spending a lot of money, you can hire a private van to take you there. Indigenous people from the whole area come into Chichicastenango to buy and sell goods at the outdoor market. The market is dedicated to the memory of Tecun Uman. He was the last K'iche' ruler. His life inspired many stories. He became a legend to the Indigenous people. People also pay respect to Rigoberta Menchú. She became the first Indigenous woman to win the Nobel Peace Prize in 1992. Tourists are attracted to this colorful outdoor market. Here you can buy handmade goods which represent the many traditional K'iche' cultures. Enjoy the visit!
