Let's Start!

There are so many people here today! It must be tourist season!

Learning Outcome

Accurately use information about travel and vacations in social situations.

Can Do Statements

- I can start a conversation with a stranger.
- I can talk about what people do.
- I can talk about what people did or were.

Ask your partner:

- What could you say to someone you don't know?
- When would you ask a stranger for information?

Let's Explore!

John strikes up a conversation with a tourist.

* You "strike up" a conversation when you start talking to someone.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

Tourist: Excuse me. May I ask you something?
John: Of course. How can I help you?
Tourist: Well, I was here last year. There was a clothing stall I really liked, but I can't seem to find it.
John: You can find many articles of clothing with geometric patterns here.
Tourist: I don't recognize the streets. Last year, the market looked different for some reason.
John: How so?
Tourist: It was quiet, and there weren't so many people.
John: Do you remember when you visited the market?
Tourist: It was in November.
John: There you go! November is not the tourist season!
Tourist: The market looks vibrant now! It is the highlight of our trip so far!
John: I agree.
Tourist: Can I ask you something else?
John: Sure. What is it?
Tourist: What time do we leave? I want to find that stall ...

Let's Practice!

Do you like talking to strangers? Time to practice speaking!

Instructions: Read the dialogue aloud.

Tourist: Excuse me, may I ask you something?

John: Of course. How can I help you?

Tourist: Can I ask you something else?

John: Sure. What is it?

Tourist: What time do we leave?

Let's Practice!

Why was the market different last year?

Instructions: Complete the sentences. Write the missing word. Use liked / looked / weren't / visited / was.

1. Do you remember when you _____ the market?
2. Well, I _____ here last year.
3. There was a clothes stall I really _____, but I can't seem to find it.
4. Last year the market _____ different for some reason.
5. It was quiet, and there _____ so many people.

Learning Points

Talking To Strangers

When you are traveling, you meet new people (strangers). You can get their attention with expressions like Excuse me? Can I ask you something? or Nice to meet you.

A stranger is someone you do not know. They can be from your own country.

When you talk to strangers, use small talk (informal chat about the weather, the city you are in, or general details about you).

When you ask questions you can use modals for requests or Wh-/Hw- questions.

Examples:

- Ann: Excuse me, may I ask you something?
- Stranger: Of course. How can I help you?
- Ann: Can I ask you something else?
- Stranger: Sure! What is it?
- Ann: When does the next bus leave?
- Stranger: There's a schedule over there at the bus stop.
